Walls and empty spaces

ARCHITECTS: C+S ASSOCIATI Architects,
Venice

This building is its structure: a wall. A wall that retracts and doubles, using colour to emphasize its passages, its thresholds. Covolo landscape is a collection of modest structures linked by a continuous series of stone walls, held intact by a thin layer of rough plaster. These walls run adjacent to a meandering mass of vegetation that fills the wide gravelly bed of the Piave River. Walls and empty spaces: this is the theme of the project. Colour outlines the door extensions and creates an orientation grid for the children who will use the spaces. The extension of the "doors" and their colour marking introduce a real transformation of the entrance area into an actual space that becomes an imagined world, different and strange, suspended between inside and out. It represents hesitation, desire, potential, wonder.
